CHAIRMAN'S REPORT

Ulf Ericson

Financial Performance

In challenging economic circumstances, Hume Building Society has had a very strong year. Net Profit for the twelve months to June 2008 was $3.57 million, unchanged from the previous year as a result of a deliberate decision not to increase variable loan rates more than increases imposed by the Reserve Bank of Australia.

Hume increased term deposit rates to maintain its competitive position and also to allow it to maintain prudent cash reserves. Deposits increased as a result of deliberate pricing decisions and funded an 11.7% increase in Total Assets to $590.7 million.

Loans and Advances increased by $36.0 million (8.3%) and Receivables and Investment Securities increased by a combined $31.6 million (48.2%).

The increase in Investment balances resulted in the High Quality Liquid Assets Ratio, one of the main prudential ratios for Authorised Deposit taking Institutions (ADIs), increasing to 19.1% at June 2008, up from 15.9% the year before. This is an excellent outcome for Hume in the midst of the current liquidity squeeze.

The way the Capital Adequacy Ratio, the other main prudential ratio, is calculated, changed on 1st January 2008 as Australia adopted the Basel II Capital Accord. Hume's capital ratio was 14.69% at June 2008. For comparison, using the old calculation method, it increased from 13.5% at June 2007 to 13.6% at June 2008.

The ability to improve both prudential ratios, despite the turbulent and volatile economic situation confronting global economic markets, highlights the success of Hume's proven strategy of developing relationships with members in convenient locations, providing excellent products and very high levels of service.

2008 Results

High Service Levels

Like most companies, Hume's success relies on the high standards delivered by its staff. The Board and Management are committed to ensuring the staff have the necessary tools, training and guidance to allow them to understand member's needs and deliver solutions through whatever channel members elect.

Hume works closely with its software providers to ensure systems are enhanced to meet new regulatory requirements like the Anti-money Laundering, Counter Terrorism Financing Legislation that came into effect in March 2007. Training on system enhancements is provided by experienced Hume staff, who also provide training on new and existing accounts to ensure service standards are maintained and legal requirements are complied with.

Demand for induction training was unusually high in 2008 as a result of new branches, increased staffing levels and the need to recruit and train staff for maternity relief positions. The number of staff resigning each year continues to be well below the industry average and allows members to be greeted and served by staff who know them and their banking needs.

In anticipation of ATM Direct Charging, a change in the way ATM fees are charged, Hume continues to increase both the number and distribution of ATMs available for use by members totally free of charge.

Regulatory Change

As noted, Hume has trained staff in the requirements of the Anti-money Laundering, Counter Terrorism Financing Legislation. There is no doubting the need for international response to money laundering and terrorism, however the regulatory burden weighs most heavily on smaller organisations like Hume Building Society.

The need to prevent a repeat of the poor lending practices that contributed to the so called sub-prime lending crisis that is causing major disruptions to global financial markets and prompting billions of dollars in write-downs is equally apparent. The proposal to transfer regulation of all credit activities to Federal jurisdiction is long overdue and must cover all types of lending by all lenders. The Consumer Credit Code requires lenders to be satisfied that borrowers can afford to repay loans granted to them. Hume applies this rule to all loan applications it receives and believes that this approach is all that is needed; new regulations are not necessary.

Economic Outlook

One result of poor lending standards has been the effective closure of the securitisation markets. Hume has not needed to access wholesale funds and has been relatively unaffected by the current liquidity squeeze other than higher deposit rates offered in the retail market to members.

Hume's projections and budgets for 2009 and beyond are for prudential ratios to be maintained at current high levels despite 2009 profit being lower than the year under review. The ability to shield borrowing members from even higher loan interest rates despite high deposit rates continuing into the current year is part of Hume's commitment to providing benefit to members. The concept of an organisation operated for the benefit of members, not shareholders, the mutual structure, has never been more evident.

Summary

The results achieved rely on Management and staff commitment to Hume's strategy of providing excellent products and high levels of service. Without their efforts, Hume would not have been able to continue to succeed.

The ability to improve in challenging economic times has its origins in the considered decisions made over many years. The contribution made by my fellow Board members puts Hume in an extremely sound position to respond to the challenges that 2009/10 is bound to present. I thank them for their continued and ongoing contribution.

A dynamic and growing business

Hume Building Society is an Authorised Deposit - taking Institution offering an extensive range of financial products from personal and business transaction accounts to loans and credit cards as well as financial planning and insurance. As a local organisation in the Albury-Wodonga region for over 50 years, community values, friendly service, competitive products and member convenience are at the heart of Hume's existence.

Hume understands what is important to members in caring for their money, in providing expertise and experience and in delivering information that is easy to understand and relevant to individual circumstances.

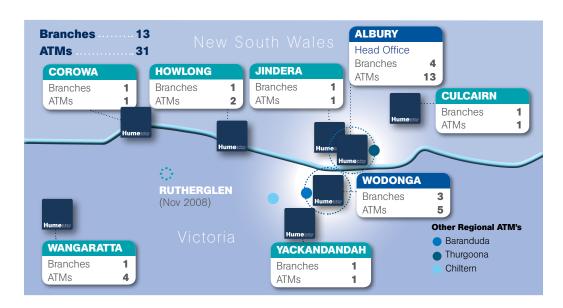

In 2007, Hume rolled out a new visual essence to better reflect its true offering and capability. The new brand is in line with Hume's vision, reinforcing a dynamic business as a contemporary local. The new image was first displayed in Wangaratta in November 2007.

Hume continues to grow with 13 branches, 31 ATMs and over 50 branch staff, with a total of 120 staff at the end of June 2008. This represents greater convenience than any other financial services provider in the area.

The region has recognised the benefits of banking with Hume and in many towns where it operates, almost half of the population bank with Hume.

Hume aims to support the communities it services by being an employer of choice and sponsoring many local events.

As a mutual, Hume members gain the financial benefits through competitive products, that are not driven by shareholder demands.

Hume members now have more ways to bank

With a focus on convenience and simplicity, Hume aims to make every member feel welcome, however they choose to do their banking.

With a strong distribution network of branches and ATMs, supported by phone and online banking, Hume is one of the most accessible financial institutions in the area.

Whether face to face or over the phone, Hume provides the same commitment and friendly approach to its service. To better meet member's online banking requirements, Hume launched a new website in May 2008, offering a state of the art facility that is user friendly and easy to access.

iBank allows members to manage their finances when and where it suits them. Member's can transfer funds, pay bills, view their accounts, plus much more.

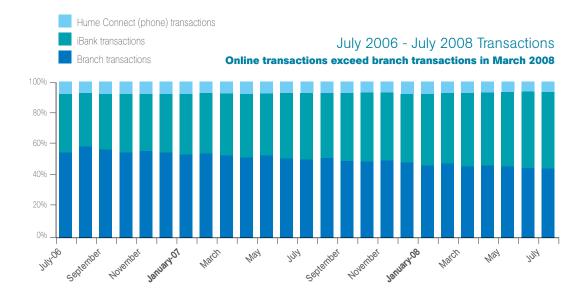

Moving to an improved online platform has increased flexibility in gathering feedback and dynamically updating the site. Not only are more people visiting the new website, but those that do visit are spending almost twice as long browsing the pages.

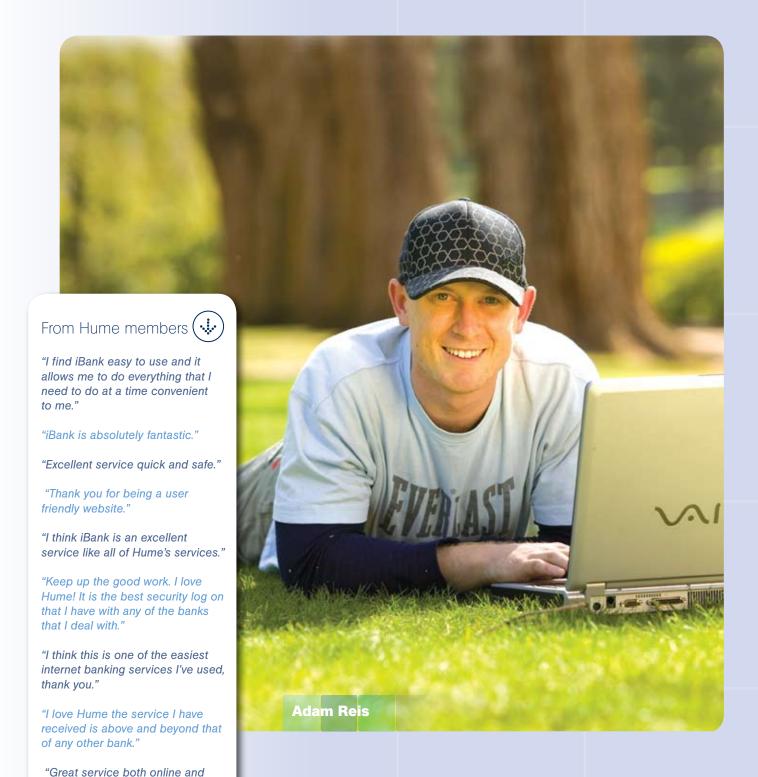

Hume continues to develop online banking with online transactions exceeding branch transactions for the first time this year.

Safer everyday banking

With Hume's internet banking service, iBank, members can view their transaction details as regularly as they wish, thereby keeping better track of their money.

Hume will introduce security tokens at the end of the year which will provide one-time real-time passwords, providing a very high level of security. This further demonstrates Hume's commitment to the level of security it provides its members.

Investing in the community

Teaching financial literacy to the next generation is critical. Financial life skills are essential to help children become confident, informed consumers in their work and personal lives. By working with schools such as Holy Spirit, Hume is able to help provide students with the necessary knowledge, understanding, skills and values in developing rewarding lives.

There are now 27 local primary schools offering their students access to School Banking with Hume. These schools receive financial support from Hume and many invite staff to present to the students on a range of topics designed to help them control their financial future.

Hume has recently expanded its financial program to include seminars for primary, secondary and tertiary students through to investors and retirees, as well as providing financial literacy information and activities.

Driving financial literacy

Hume Building Society and Upper Murray Regional Library (UMRL) have worked together to develop 'The Hume Building Society Homework and Training Centre' which was launched on 5th May 2008.

The vehicle is operated by the UMRL with financial support from Hume. This three year sponsorship is a significant contribution to the provision of computer and internet access to the remote communities and groups serviced by the UMRL.

The project supports Hume Building Society's focus on providing financial literacy, as the vehicle offers access to online information on how to save and manage money. As a mobile classroom, containing 7 laptops and an LCD screen, it is also used for school visits and community events.

On 7th May 2008, Hume hosted 'School Night' which offered an opportunity for representatives from the region's primary, secondary and tertiary schools to discuss how Hume can help improve financial literacy in the region. The event helped shape Hume's comprehensive financial literacy program.

Hume's dedication to financial literacy continues, with ongoing development and activities being promoted within the community.
